

Almatris Global Update on COVID-19

The global COVID-19 pandemic remains a critical part of our daily lives. As countries and governments re-evaluate and relax certain restrictions, there remains a high risk of continued outbreaks. Certainly, this event has redefined a “new normal” and Almatris is committed to take all necessary measures to ensure the continued health and safety of our employees, business partners, and worldwide community.

Since the start of the outbreak, employees around the world that are not absolutely necessary to maintain operations have been working from home. Throughout this time, Almatris facilities have continued to supply material to our customers and critical industries, and currently all facilities are operating normally. Recently, employees in certain regions have been allowed to return to the office, in a phased and structured approach. Throughout this return to work phase, Almatris is maintaining strict adherence to all government restrictions, and requirements regarding hygiene, social distancing, usage of face masks, quarantine measures, and further the guidelines & recommendations issued by the CDC (Center for Disease Control) and WHO (World Health Organization).

We would like to thank our employees all over the world for their continued perseverance. Whether they have remained onsite to keep critical production facilities operating, or have been working from home, our employees have remained dedicated and determined to servicing our customers.
